Ayurdhi Dhar is an instructor of psychology at University of West Georgia. She has taught psychology in the United States and in India, where she also worked as a therapist. She is the author of Madness and Subjectivity: A Cross-Cultural Examination of Psychosis in the West and India, which was released in September 2019. Her interests include discursive practices sustaining the concept of mental illness, decolonial theory, schizophrenic subjectivity, trauma and immigration, and critiques of ahistorical and acontextual forms of knowledge. She loves dogs.
