

Name: Matteo Sgorbati

Affiliation: doctoral student at the University of Perugia (Italy) (since november 2020) and Ghent University (Belgium) (from march 2021). Supervisors: Prof. Ester Bianchi and Prof. Bart Dessein.

Research fields: Yogācāra Revival, Psychoanalysis in modern and contemporary China and Taiwan, development of local discourses and practices on psychotherapy

Bio: I have obtained a B.A. in Philosophy and a M.A. in Anthropology at the University of Perugia, and later I have obtained a double M.A. in World religions and philosophy at the University of Perugia and Fu Jen Catholic University in Taiwan, where I lived one year and half. I am not a psychologist but I researched in cultural and epistemological issues related to the psychoanalytical interpretation of Buddhism and I Ching (易經) in the West during my studies. Currently I am researching - as a doctoral student at the University of Perugia and Ghent University - on the reception of the psychoanalytical theory within the so-called Yogācāra Revival in modern and contemporary China and Taiwan. I would like to exchange ideas and broaden my comprehension on therapy and indigenous psychology, therefore I am glad to become part of this mailing list!
