

Timothy A. Sisemore is a licensed clinical psychologist and has worked both in academics and in private practice. He has written 8 books and numerous articles, probably best summarized by his text with John Wiley & Sons, The Psychology of Religion and Spirituality: From the Inside Out. He is currently president-elect of APA's Division 36 (Psychology of Religion and Spirituality). Dr. Sisemore's interest in indigenous psychology stems from the notion that for many, religion and/or spirituality form a social bond and way of interpreting the world, thus making group faiths a basis for indigenous psychologies
