

AASP 2027 Conference – Invitation to Share with the Indigenous Psychology Task Force

Dear Louise,

I hope you are well.

My name is Wendy Li, and I am the President of the Asian Association of Social Psychology (AASP) and Chair of the AASP 2027 Conference, which will be held in Cairns, Australia, from 6–8 August 2027.

I am writing to ask whether you would kindly share the attached AASP 2027 Conference newsletter with members of the Task Force on Indigenous Psychology and your broader Indigenous psychology network.

The theme of AASP 2027 is Advancing Social Psychology in a Transforming World. One of our key subthemes is Culture, Identity, and Belonging, which explicitly includes Indigenous and decolonising psychologies, alongside cultural adaptation, migration, acculturation, multiculturalism, social cohesion, identity, intersectionality, and belonging.

Given the important work of the Task Force in advancing Indigenous psychologies internationally, we would particularly welcome contributions from your members. We hope the conference can provide a space for Indigenous, decolonising, and culturally grounded perspectives to engage with social psychology, while also encouraging dialogue about how psychological knowledge can better reflect diverse cultural understandings, communities, and ways of knowing.

We welcome theoretical, empirical, methodological, and applied contributions, including individual presentations and symposia. The first-round deadline for abstracts and symposium proposals is 31 October 2026.

I have attached our latest conference newsletter, which provides further information about AASP 2027 and Cairns. We would be very grateful if you could circulate it through the Task Force and any other relevant networks.

Thank you very much, Louise. We would be delighted to welcome you and members of the Indigenous Psychology Task Force to Cairns in 2027.

Warm regards,

Wendy Li

President, Asian Association of Social Psychology
Chair, AASP 2027 Conference
