The Department of Psychology in the McAnulty College and Graduate School of Liberal Arts at Duquesne University invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in Psychology, beginning fall 2023. The successful candidate will join 9 other full-time departmental faculty. The department offers an APA-accredited Ph.D. program in clinical psychology and a robust undergraduate major. Committed to the articulation of psychology as a human science, our faculty affirms the importance of a philosophically informed perspective on psychological theory, research and clinical practice. We practice psychology in a way that is sensitive to the assumptions that underlie any effort to understand human beings, and to the historical, cultural, relational, and embodied character of all human thought and activity. We particularly seek applications from candidates whose research, teaching, and/or service has prepared them to contribute to our mission of considering human psychology in social and cultural context, and whose background and experience prepare them to contribute to our ongoing work toward diversity and inclusion in higher education.

As a condition of employment, Duquesne University requires all new employees—full-time and part-time, including adjunct faculty—to get a COVID-19 vaccine and provide proof of their vaccination upon commencement of employment.

New employees requesting a religious or documented medical exemption from the vaccine must complete and submit a Duquesne University exemption request form for review and approval. To receive the appropriate exemption request form, contact hrservices@duq.edu. Employees with approved exemptions will be required to be tested on a regular basis.

Qualifications:

The successful candidate will have a Ph.D. or Psy.D. in psychology. The new faculty member will teach courses in our undergraduate and graduate programs, and as relevant to their interests, contribute to clinical training in our PhD program. Additionally, the candidate will have opportunities to engage in graduate and undergraduate research and mentorship. Startup funding is available for community-engaged research, and funding is available for travel to present scholarship at conferences and other venues. We are especially interested in candidates who are enthusiastic about engaging with and contributing to the Duquesne Psychology Department's human science orientation, and encourage interested candidates to apply regardless of area of specialization.

Alternately, the successful candidate may possess any equivalent combination of experience and training, which provides the knowledge, skills and abilities required to perform the essential job functions. This includes commitment to the University's values of diversity, equity and inclusion, and recognition of the importance of treating each individual with dignity and respect consistent with the University's Mission. Additionally, applicants must have demonstrated experience with, and understanding of, the broad diversity of the University community (students, faculty, staff and others).

Ability to establish and maintain effective working relationships with the University Community.

Ability and willingness to contribute actively to the mission of the University and to respect the Spiritan Catholic identity of Duquesne University. The mission is implemented through a commitment to academic excellence, a spirit of service, moral and spiritual values, sensitivity to world concerns, and an ecumenical campus community.

APPLICATION INSTRUCTIONS:

Applicants are asked to submit a cover letter, resume, and contact information for three professional references. Applications will be considered on a rolling basis; priority consideration will be given to those received before January 27, 2023. Feel free to contact the search committee chair, Dr. Russell Walsh (Walshr@duq.edu), with questions and/or queries..
