

[DIV24] Journal of Humanistic Psychology Special Issue Call for Papers

Dear Colleagues,

We are pleased to announce a call for submissions for a forthcoming special issue of the *Journal of Humanistic Psychology, titled "Psychology and The World: Denaturalization, Decolonization, and Reconceptualization of Psy-Discourse."

Denaturalization involves challenging our understandings of what is perceived as given or natural – in a society, a discipline, a paradigm; it is a known method of decolonization. In the Psy-disciplines, it involves de-sedimenting ideas around naturalized forms of being, and ways of thinking and feeling that Psychology has taken-for-granted. In other words, it requires questioning the knowledge premised upon hidden assumptions underlying the Psy-discourse. This allows alternative modes of being human to emerge, and shines light on knowledges which push back against the Psy-hegemony.

For more details about the issue, please see the attached document or visit the journal's page here.

Letter of Intent Deadline: Nov 15, 2025

Manuscript Submission Deadline: April 15, 2026

Guest Editor: Ayurdhi Dhar

Selected authors will be invited to submit full manuscripts, which will undergo peer review in accordance with the journal's policies.

We look forward to your proposals and to engaging critically and creatively with the intersections of psychology and the world.

Regards,

Ayurdhi Dhar, PhD

Assistant Professor of Psychology, Amity University

Editor, Mad in South Asia

Part-time instructor, Prescott College, Arizona